

6SSEL045 – Language Origins

Lecture 4 Interactive: Why do we all have infantile amnesia?

We are born without the capacity to lay down memories, and only begin to store long-term memories after age one. Long-term autobiographical memories (memories about ourself), only begin to be stored when we are four or even older. What evolutionary purpose does this infantile amnesia serve, and what causes it?