

Interesting Times – in a good way

2013 has been another busy year for us. It has been the year of the Pinkies' 30th anniversary, and there have been events all over London, including a very professional exhibition about the 30 years. The choir has a lot more than just singing talent to call upon!

Philip finally retired at the end of June, after having very successfully brought his last policy initiative to completion. It was a high-profile policy which was key to the Government's plans, and it is one of very few policy initiatives which hasn't hit any obstacles.

Martin has been busy with his lecturing. He thought he would have less this academic year because his MA module was amalgamated with another, but he was given a 3rd year BA module to teach, and it's proving to be very rewarding. He also gave papers at conferences in Lancaster and London, and had an article published in Babel, a magazine for young linguists.

We'll let the pictures do the rest of the talking ...

February

23rd – Pink Singers make an exhibition of themselves at the Victoria & Albert Museum

March

19th – Top of the Shard, Ma! You can see our house from up here!

May

25th – Tower Bridge: view of the Shard from the high-level walkway

June

16th – Cornwall: wedding of Charlotte (Philip's great niece) & John

July

13th – Pink Singers 30th year festival: massed choirs at the Troxy, East London

27th – QEII (formerly Olympic) Park reopens

August

2nd – Pink Singers open their 30th year exhibition at the Guardian, King's Cross

7th – Pink Singers celebrate Equal Marriage Act in garden of 10 Downing Street

14th – Trip to Alexandra Palace. The Palm Court

September

5th – Afternoon in St James' Park, after a lunch at the park restaurant

October

1st – Hall Place in Bexley: a Tudor & Stuart country house and gardens

26th – Whistling ducks at the London Wetlands Centre – they really do whistle! We went for Spider Day, which Martin really enjoyed

November

2nd – Light Night in the QEII Park

December

Sunset in the QEII Park

That Techie Stuff

Philip: philiprescorla@yahoo.co.uk

Martin: martin.edwardes@btoopenworld.com

Website: <http://martinedwardes.webplus.net/>